

How can we do better? Better for each other. And better for our planet.

It's a question we ask ourselves every day.

We try our best to balance what we take with what we give back.

And for us that means ensuring the factories we work with meet an ethical code of conduct.

It means using 100 per cent Australian cotton in our hardworking basics.

And moving to more environmentally friendly processes with our recycled denim range.

We employ over xxxx women across our xxx stores and head office because we believe women working together creates collaboration, kindness and a network of support.

That's why we partner with Breast Cancer Network Australia.

Together we have raised funds to improve the return to work experiences of women following breast cancer.

It's never enough. But we're trying.

And putting people and planet before profit is a good place to start.

But this is a journey we are going on together

As what you buy, or don't buy, matters too.

Sussan stands for more than just fashion trends.

Because it's the choices we make today that have the power to change tomorrow.

Help us to be better.

“Women with their caring and sharing will be the teachers of how to be human in the future.”
