

We are women of now.

We are confidently vulnerable

We are powerfully resilient

We keep it together and know when to let go

We run families and businesses and marathons

We run bubble baths after long days

We are the life of the party

We are happy alone

We are stronger because we care...

We care about the big stuff: like the planet, the small stuff (is this necklace too much with this dress?), and everything in between

We aren't afraid to speak out, stand up, not settle for less

We aren't perfect, but that's how we like it

We've hooked up, shacked up, split up

Felt the hot rush of winning

And the crushing weight of loss

We are complicated (in a good way), taking up space in a world that wasn't made for us

We're never 'just', we are enough

We are strong, even if we don't always show it

WE ARE WOMEN OF NOW.